

Cassandra Adams (she/her) is a late-discovery, transethnic, sperm donor-conceived person dedicated to raising awareness of issues surrounding 'donor' conception. Her focus includes educating parents on best practices and advancing legislative changes for reforming the fertility industry. She explores the ethics of 'donor' conception, the emotional impact and trauma of late discovery, and the complexities of ethnicity changes. As an engaged community member and leader, she connects DCP stories to the larger NPE/MPE (Not Parent Expected/Misattributed Parentage Experience) and adoption communities and addresses the nuanced experiences of separation from biological kin and the dynamics of family secrecy. She has volunteered her time and spoken with a variety of organizations and nonprofits focusing on Misattributed Parentage, Donor Conception, and Adoption. She helps moderate the largest online community for the DC constellation, and uses her background in psychology, healthcare, and writing to educate, provide heartfelt understanding and support, and create performance art about her experience as a DCP.

<https://twitter.com/cassandrajadams>

<https://righttoknow.us/2021/08/04/cassandra-adams/>

<https://www.legalizesurrogacywhynot.com/cassandra-adams-story>

<https://www.dnangels.org/donor-conceived-it-does-matter/>

<https://www.nextavenue.org/donor-conception-in-the-spotlight/>

<https://donorconceivedcommunity.org/about>

https://www.hiraethhopeandhealing.com/?fbclid=IwAR1_jkN159JFfoNS9TXhBufIp4L8Wx14wbMvK7EpX079pQDBaTnpwlm7s_g