TRAUMA TRAINING TUESDAY

VIRTUAL/ZOOM

THIRD TUESDAY OF THE MONTH

12:00 P.M.-2:00 P.M.

MICROAGGRESSIONS: Part 2- SOLUTIONS FOR THE WORKPLACE

Last month's training was so resonant and informative- we needed more! In Part 1 we learned what they are, and the harm they do to people in marginalized identity groups. Because the harm is often unintentional, there are strategies for prevention and repair. Dr. McNickles will support us in building workplaces where everyone can authentically thrive. Watch Part One here- <https://www.worcesteracts.org>.

Dr. Joyce McNickles, is a social justice educator and consultant with over thirty years of experience developing and executing comprehensive cultural competency, racial equity, and inclusion initiatives in academic, corporate, and non- profit settings. She is the founder of McNickles & Associates, a consulting practice which provides individualized coaching and mentoring for executive leadership, conducts staff trainings, and helps organizations facilitate difficult dialogues related to race, gender, sexual orientation, and other aspects of diversity. She is Visiting Professor of Politics and Social Justice at Regis College. Formerly, she was Professor of Human Development and Human Services at Anna Maria College where she taught courses on diversity in the workplace, social inequality, and sociology. She will support us all in navigating and mitigating the harm done by microaggressions.
