TRAUMA TRAINING TUESDAY

VIRTUAL/ZOOM

THIRD TUESDAY OF THE MONTH

Men's Work: Masculinity, Accountability & Preventing Sexual Violence

Recent allegations involving seven men at Cornell University have ignited a national conversation about sexual violence, masculinity, consent, accountability, and the cultures that shape men's behavior. Preventing gender-based violence cannot be work that women and survivors are expected to carry alone. Join educators and facilitators Ukumbwa Sauti & Stephen Montagna, for a timely conversation about men's role in challenging harmful norms, building cultures of consent and accountability, and creating healthier models of masculinity. This conversation will explore what meaningful "men's work" looks like—and how men can move beyond simply not causing harm toward actively helping to prevent it.

Ukumbwa Sauti, M.Ed. is an educator and facilitator specializing in Men's Work, anti-patriarchy, consent, and accountability.

Stephen Montagna, MFA is an educator and facilitator whose work focuses on violence prevention, masculinity, gender, and equity.
